« Me when I am thinking
of a diabolical plan »

The artwork you are looking for was sculpted just in 5 months in 1920 by Paul Dardé. It was his first piece of art to be exhibited in Salon de Paris. It is the only sculpture that he made of limestone, a stone that was transferred from the Seine and it is full of shells. The depicted mythical character is well known for his wild, licentious lifestyle, especially making pranks, and love for women and wine.

*« Alice: How long is forever?
White Rabbit: Sometimes, just one second »*

The artwork you are looking for was an order of a wealthy man. However, when Dardé finished the sculpture in 1923 he loved it so much that he kept it for himself and gave the money he received back. This sculpture was made from precious shiny marble. When people see this lively sculpture it can remind them of Alice in Wonderland.

The artwork you are looking for is connected with Dardé's life . It's because both of them suffered from a form of madness. Therefore the character wasn't likely to have a lucky fate because he committed a lot of terrible things. The bust's eyes are full of regrets and hopelessness. Murder makes you a different person. This sculpture is made of plaster and it's one of the biggest busts here.

« With the line we can express lots of emotions »

On your last mission you can discover another part of Paul Dardé's mind through the way he expressed his feelings by his art. Dardé loved to use his own techniques and natural materials to make his own colours. To make black colour he burned charcoal branches and for red colour he dried and crushed madder roots. On some of his artworks he wrote extracts from famous books. The collection contains three thousand of his pieces of art.
